Esports is growing

- Goal initially to improve returns for twitch by investing in tournaments.
- Twitch API only updates in real-time not useable.
- Check if player involvement improved after tournaments. Using this data game companies can increase profit through increased player participation.

Cleaning the data

- Data was initially outputted to .json.
- Data then cleaned with pandas. Tables merge and pivoted.
- Pandas frames outputted to Amazon RDS Postgres.
- .json files added to amazon S3 bucket esports-scraper-data.

Further Steps:

- Create a GUI to enable a user friendly scraping experience.
- Use AI/Machine learning techniques to build an automated scraper.
- Create automated twitch scraper using twitch API to collect real-time data.
- Run scrapers in the cloud to automate scraping and sell data to the games companies.

Data to Analyse

Data added to two SQL tables
Player_Data 428 entries and Tournament_Data 1947 entries.

Sum prize pools based on month and compare with the change in players numbers during this time.

Profitability

- Increase in players means more participation meaning more microtransactions and subscriptions from players.
- Competitive players are very dedicated to the game so will spend many hours playing.
- If we can show twitch participation improvement from tournaments then ad revenue will be increased.
- Companies may be opening to allowing microtransaction/subscription data analysis.
